

Deborah Brzoska

Contact: (541) 788-1241

E-mail: debbrzoska@aol.com

Topic or Theme

1. The Arts for ALL Kids-Making It Happen in Your Schools
2. Tell a Powerful Story-How to Collect and Share Data on the Impact of the Arts on Student Learning
3. Re-thinking Secondary Schools: How the Arts Can Pave the Way
4. Developing Community-School Partnerships in the Arts
5. How to Develop Sequential Arts Education Programs in Elementary Schools

Audience

- Principals, school board members, district staff, teachers (K-12), community members, parents
- Arts organizations, teachers, administrators, and community arts advocacy groups
- Middle and high school teachers, arts specialists, principals, school district leaders, arts organizations, community members
- School leaders, educators, artists, arts organizations, community members
- Elementary teachers and principals, district arts leaders, arts organizations

DEBORAH BRZOSKA, a former dancer and choreographer, is a recognized leader in arts education who works with teachers and artists across the country in arts curriculum, assessment, research and professional development. Currently, she is guiding action research efforts for The Kennedy Center as well as three federally-funded arts research and dissemination projects, including innovative programs in Hawai'i. Ms. Brzoska is the founding principal of an award-winning arts-based public school in Vancouver, Washington and works nationally to help others develop exciting arts-based schools and sound arts instructional practice.